

Mazal Tov!

2 brides on their wedding day crossing a young Orthodox family

Same-sex marriage cannot legally be performed in Israel. Under the confessional community system that operates in Israel, each of the recognized confessional communities regulates the personal status, including marriage and divorce, of its members. The state views marriage as a religious institution and as such does not issue marriage licences, regardless of sexual orientation.

What do you think?
(Tweet or share on Facebook)