SESSION TIMELINE & OUTLINE:

Opening Activity - How the Light Gets In // Time: 15 minutes

1. Listen to Anthem; hand out lyrics sheet. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BCS_MwkWzes
2. Discussion:
 - a. How does this help move our conversation about releasing ourselves from the pursuit of perfection?
 - b. How could you use something like this at camp?
 - c. Can you come up with an example of a crack that lets light in at camp?
 - i.in tefillah at camp?

Step-by-Step Session Description // Time: 65 minutes

1. #policyandchange (15 minutes) - In the last year plus, there has been a critical uprising of voices on social media about #thoughtsandprayers, with a move toward policy and change. I was particularly inspired by the idea of reframing something that's meant to be positive to be more actionable and positive, and I hope you will be, too.
 1. Write down two words to define your camp's prayer experiences at camp in the middle of a sheet of paper. (examples: holy & fun, engaging & exciting, religious & spiritual)
 2. Write down two words that you feel like will add to the overall experiences of everybody in your camp experiencing Tefillah. (examples: experimental & experiential, kid-led & communal, by unit & pop cultural)
 1. Do you want it to look like this meme?

3. Make your own simple version of this meme - put two words that you think your camp would use to define prayer, and think of two new words that can, in this case, move your camp toward a less perfect - and therefore more perfect - prayer definition.
4. Share!

5. Discuss:

1. In this case, do you want to cross out any of the words, or make them work together? How and why?
2. What was it like to take two positive words and add two more in?
3. Do you think any of your word choices will be challenging for people at your camp to process? Why?

2. Programming & Action (50 minutes)

1. Group Action (20 minutes):

1. Think of a song, prayer, or service that is beloved at your camp. Maybe it's "One Day" by Matisyahu, maybe it's Havdallah, or maybe it's Shabbat musaf. Let's write some favorites up on a flip chart.
2. Now, think of a song, prayer, or service that's kind of...not the best...at your camp. Let's write those on a flip chart, too.
3. Action!
 1. Team up with a partner. Each team will get a prayer or song from our group list. Find that prayer / song - I can help - either in one of the siddurim we have here, or on a website like build-a-prayer.org.
 2. You'll each get two slips of paper - one with an age group, and one with group size.
 3. You will have 10 minutes to create a skeleton of a program letting people experience your prayer or song, and then we'll share as a group.
 4. Questions to consider:
 - a. What's innovative about what you're doing?
 - b. What helps people drop the idea of perfection?
 - c. What was the best part of working with a partner on this?
 - d. What was most challenging about trying to develop your program?

2. Solo Action (30 minutes) OK, now that you've developed a bit with your partner, now it's your turn - and therefore, your camp's turn. Find a prayer or song from your own list (it's OK if it didn't make it to the flip chart). Take that prayer and workshop in your small groups how you can help break down the desire for perfection, and focus on the beauty of the good, and the beauty of the frustration. Since this is your camp, you get to make the decisions - age group and group size are up to you. Where is this going to work at your camp this summer - and how? Get to work!

1. Share! Group Feedback!

2. Discussion (10 minutes):

1. What was it like to try to do some work from a different angle on a prayer or song that's beloved, or panned, at your camp?
2. What will be your biggest barrier to making something like this work at your camp?
 - a. How are you going to combat this?
3. What do you think will happen at your camp when you try to pilot this idea that you just created?
4. How can you get your camp community to drop the idea of perfection this summer?
5. What was it like to choose a prayer/song/ritual to dissect in this way?
