

Scenario Cards

A 7 year old camper stubs, their toe, falls, and starts crying	A 12 year old camper comes up to you very angrily demanding that you punish your camper for their poor treatment of them.	A 9 year old camper is booed on stage at the talent show and walks off silently.	A friend who's a counselor in another unit just found out their boyfriend has been cheating on them, and an all-camp ruach program is next.
A 10 year old camper is so happy from a letter he got at the end of lunch that he is jumping and waving his arms and squeezing his hands and squirting ketchup from strangled packets everywhere	An 8 year old camper comes up to you during the screening of Mulan and tells you through tears and sobs that they are very homesick, very sad, and want to go home	A 13 year old camper is sulking off to the side of the backstop while a group of campers their age is 10 feet away softly throwing pieces of mulch at and taunting them.	A 15 year old camper refuses to go to lunch because every time they see their former best friend they explode with anger and just can't handle it anymore.
An 11 year old camper walks up to another camper their age and just starts screaming at the top of their lungs at them about a lanyard that never belonged to them.	A 6 year old camper walks up to you, hits you inappropriately and smiles and laughs in reaction to doing so.	A supervisor is tired from a long night being Super OD. When you ask them for information for the day, they look at you in disgust and say "Can I please just have my coffee before you demand things from me".	Your cabin is upset that the kitchen is out of curly fries. They only got one dish of it, Alex took most of it, and Taylor only got one fry.