SHOSKE

DAILY “POSTCARD”

According to Marker Magazine, in 2023 Shoshke was one of the 100 most influential people in Israel.

“In these postcards, although the subject matter is heart-wrenching—children being held hostage or returning home to their parents, civilians with their arms raised at gunpoint—I find this activity soothing. It’s thinking about it and being in the situation, but in some other way than watching the news all day. I want to express feelings and horror – a protest against violence and brutality of war, wherever it takes place.”

“I really love nonsense and a lot of what I do is nonsense,” he said, pointing at his work-filled studio. “Art offers an opportunity to think about far-flung thoughts, not reality. You don’t look at things straight on.”

“When you draw it and post it and then thousands of responses come in, it gives me the desire to draw something that offers optimism.”
